Our mission is to make this ancient yet contemporary ingredient an essential part of the fabric of American life. Through our sauces and seasonings, we bring new flavors to home cooks, professional chefs and food manufacturers in ways that are convenient, delicious, and in step with the times.

Our promise is to provide the highest quality products and service by continuously improving on our centuries-old heritage of techniques and expertise. We hope to bring happiness to the table every day by helping support healthy minds and bodies in delicious new ways.

Three Centuries of Craftsmanship

Soy sauce is one of the world's oldest seasonings and condiments, dating back more than 2,000 years. Over the centuries, it found its way to Japan, where the traditional fermentation process was refined and perfected to create shoyu, the rich flavorful seasoning we know as soy sauce today.

It was there Kikkoman's story began.

In the mid-1600s, three resourceful families set up a brewery in the farming community of Noda along the Edo river, not far from present-day Tokyo.

And today, nearly 20 generations later, their descendants still run what has become the world's leading soy sauce brand.

KIKKOMAN®

A Name That Tells A Story

The name Kikkoman has proved to be a fitting one. In Japanese, kikko means "tortoise shell" and man means "ten thousand." In Japan, the tortoise is a traditional symbol of steady progress and longevity since, according to Japanese folklore, the animal is believed to live as long as 10,000 years. Our founding families had a vision that their company would prosper and endure, and they were right. The centuries-old Kikkoman logo—a hexagon, representing the tortoise shell, with the character for "ten thousand" in the center—is one of the world's oldest brand-marks still in use.

Our Beginnings in the U.S.A.

After World War II, Kikkoman began exporting in earnest. Seeing how Americans stationed in Japan had grown to love the taste of its soy sauce, Kikkoman established a marketing company in San Francisco in 1957 to fully break into the U.S. market.

The Kikkoman approach has been to localize management, be a good corporate citizen in its host markets, and grow and prosper alongside local communities.

Our products are steadily becoming an integral part of local food culture and generating new value. The name "Kikkoman" is now a byword for soy sauce as well as a mark of fine quality and dependability.

FERMENTATION NATION

From pickles and kimchi to artisan brewing, fermentation is sweeping the nation. What's behind this megatrend? One word: flavor. Fermentation intensifies the flavors of natural ingredients, and soy sauce is a perfect example. The traditional fermentation process transforms water, wheat, soybeans and salt into one of the world's most umami-rich seasonings.

Soy Sauce Products

Whether you are looking for a full-bodied soy sauce, reduced sodium or gluten-free - Kikkoman has a soy sauce product for you. Traditionally brewed in the U.S. using North American grown soybeans and wheat, natural salt and pure water, Kikkoman utilizes the fermentation process that was developed centuries ago.

Soy Sauce

Versatile all-purpose seasoning that adds depth and appeal to all kinds of dishes—Asian and beyond. Rich flavor and appealing amber color complement other ingredients without masking them.
